My Busy Saturday

Ava Roberts
Pflugerville M. S.

On Saturday May 11, I attended two events. During most of the day, I attended the PowHERful Enrichment Conference held at IBM in Austin from 8:00 a.m. – 4:00 p.m. Soledad O'Brien and IBM partnered to host the event. Soledad was unable to attend this year's event in person, but she sent us a video message. Sheba Turk, a news anchor from New Orleans, hosted the event. I learned about Artificial Intelligence, Body Language, Health, and Creative Business.

During the last hour of the conference, I headed to my second event. It was the Gil Scouts of Central Texas 1000+ Seller Ceremony held at AISD Performing Arts Center from 3:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. This was my first time attending. I was very excited to be a part of a very small group of scouts being recognized.

I am happy to that I went to both events. I was tired by the end of the day but being a part of two great events was worth it. I would like to thank all who volunteer and support Girls learning and growth. Lastly, I want to give a special shout out to all who buy Girl Scout Cookies!

AP Testing

Averill Topps
Stephen F. Austin H.S.

Hello everybody, today I would like to talk about the hardest week of testing juniors have.

In the past two weeks, all juniors take end of year AP tests that determine if they get end of year credit. This means they won't have to take the class again in college which saves money. Only 50 percent of students pass the test so many students spend days studying.

One teachers first told us to start preparing a month before we took the test. This made us understand that the test was especially serious if they reminded us and gave us time to work on it in class. While although we got almost a month to prep, most students just cram studied, which means student stayed up all night studying.

That's all for this week. Until Next Time. Go Austin High Maroons!

The Day for the Incredible Women

SaNaya White
Ann Richards

A mother's love is unique, special, unconditional, something that shouldn't be taken for granted. May 12, marked a day in which mother's all around the world were celebrated for their motherhood. Their contributions and support were recognized on this day, even though they should be recognized every day. I'd like to take time and thank each mother at this moment, and more specifically, my mother.

To a woman who is powerful, strong willed, determined, passionate, supportive, encouraging, and loving, thank you. Thank you for bringing me life and raising me to have the best one I possibly can. Thank you for continuing to love and care for me even when we go through the toughest of times. You are such an inspiration to me, you work your hardest and strive to be the best. I love everything about you, I love how you take your struggles and challenges them turn them into accomplishments. You help others and you are always looking for a way to give back to the community. Thank you for teaching me all that you know, and providing me with the knowledge that I need to be successful in this world. I don't know what I would do without you. I love you more than you could ever imagine. I hope you know that I do not only feel this way on Mother's Day, but rather every day. Thank you for everything Mama. To the families who did not celebrate a mother on Mother's Day, know that you will always have someone looking out for you and I hope you were able to recognize them. Even if that person was a friend, or teacher, look for that person who has always been there by your side. I was blessed to have the most incredible woman stand by mine. I hope everyone had an amazing Mother's Day.

Spinoff of ABC's 'black-ish' to Focus on Mixed-Race Issues

This image released by ABC shows, from left, Miles Brown, Marsai Martin, Tracee Ellis Ross, Marcus Scribner, Anthony Anderson and Jenifer Lewis in a scene from "black-ish." ABC announced it is picking up the acclaimed comedy for a sixth season. The network is also giving an early series order to "mixed-ish," a spinoff about show creator Rainbow Johnson's experience growing up in a mixed-race family in the '80s. (Ron Tom/ABC via AP)

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A spinoff of the ABC sitcom "black-ish" will focus on a young Rainbow Johnson and her challenges growing up in the 1980s.

ABC said Thursday that the new series, titled "mixed-ish," will be narrated by Tracee Ellis Ross. She stars in "black-ish" as the adult character with the nickname of Bow.

In the spinoff, preteen Bow and her mixed-ethnicity family face the dilemma of assimilation or staying "true to themselves," according to ABC.

Bow and her siblings also must adapt to suburbia and a mainstream school after their parents move from a commune.

Arica Himmel stars as Bow, with Tika Sumpter and Christina Anthony among the other cast members in "mixed-ish." An airdate for the spinoff wasn't announced.

ABC also said it renewed "black-ish" for next season, its sixth.
